The American Food Safety Institute in affiliation with the Westfield Public Health Association and Westfield State College will be holding a one day Food Managers Certification Course in Westfield, MA. Massachusetts has joined with other states to enact laws which require food safety training and testing (certification) of Food Service Managers. These organizations are providing for you this one day approved food safety training with exam that you'll need to become a Certified Food Manager. In a food establishment, food safety is essential as you well know that you cannot see, smell or taste deadly bacteria such as E.coli 0157:H7 and other bacteria. Come and learn the latest foodborne disease prevention strategies by enrolling your management in this certification course today.

If you have any questions or concerns, please call our office: 1(800) 723-3873.
